ASTD Code of Ethics

The ASTD Code of Ethics provides guidance to members to be self-managed human resource development professionals. Clients and employers should expect from ASTD members the highest professional standards of personal integrity, professional competence, sound judgment and discretion. Developed by the profession for the profession, the ASTD Code of Ethics is the Society's public declaration of its members' obligations to themselves, their profession and society.

I strive to...

- Recognize the rights and dignities of each individual
- Develop human potential
- Provide my employer, clients, and learners with the highest level quality education, training and development
- Comply with all copyright laws and regulations governing my position
- Keep informed of pertinent knowledge and competence in the human resource field
- Maintain confidentiality and integrity in the practice of my profession
- Conduct myself in an ethical and honest manner
- Improve the public understanding of human resource development and management
- Support my peers and avoid conduct which might impede their practicing their profession
- Fairly and accurately represent my human resource development/human resource management credentials, qualifications, experience and ability
- Contribute to the continuing growth of the Society and its members
